THE OHIO ALUMNUS is published by the Ohio University Alumni Association, William K. Loftus, '58, Executive Director; J. David Scott, '59, Med '60, Assistant Director. Member of the American Alumni Council.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS of the Ohio University Alumni Association: Eugene F. Rinta, '38, President; Richard O. Linke, '41, Vice President; Ralph Beckert, '23, Treasurer; William K. Loftus, '58, Secretary; Milton O. Berry, '50; Paul Brickman, '46; C. P. Bryan, '32, ex officio; Richard W. Eddy, '40; Lillie M. Greer, '25; Wallace Hodes, '43; Mrs. Olive Will Holmes, '38; John D. Hostutler, '50; John Kircher, '50; Dr. Wilfred Konneker, '43, MS '47; Charles Lewis, '40; Dr. Raymond Lupse, '36; Robert W. Reider, '39.

THE SEARCH ENDS . . . A NEW ERA BEGINS

BY the time the official announcement was made, Claude R. Sowle's appointment as Ohio University's 16th president was hardly news.

Rumors concerning the 40-year-old University of Cincinnati law dean's selection had been building for nearly two weeks before the appointment was confirmed April 27.

Campus speculation concerning Vernon Alden's successor began last September with Alden's announcement that he would resign at the end of the academic year. The speculation remained speculation, however, until the Cincinnati Enquirer gave Sowle the edge in the presidential selection race in a front page story Saturday, April 19.

According to the Enquirer's Bill Carlson, Sowle had visited the Athens campus to meet with students, faculty and administrators on the screening committee, and he also had met with a group of the trustees in Columbus the day before the story appeared. As far as the Cincinnati daily was concerned, Carlson wrote, Sowle was "the man."

Evidence of the validity of Carlson's story mounted, and on Tuesday the Ohio University Post reported that George Lobdell, the faculty representative on the trustees' selection committee, said that "not only did Sowle look good on paper, but after meeting him, everything on paper seemed to be there in reality."

Sowle's "paper" references included a solid academic background—as a student, a teacher and an administrator; the authorship of several volumes on law, and a distinguished listing in the 1968-69 Who's Who in America. He had been associate dean of law at Northwestern University before going to Cincinnati, he had served as a legal consultant to the governor of Illinois and he had been named one of Chicago's Ten Outstanding Young Men of 1963.

On Sunday, April 27, eight days after the Enquirer broke its story, Trustee Joseph Hall of Cincinnati, chairman of the selection committee, confirmed the rumors and said Claude R. Sowle would become Ohio University's president Aug. 1.

Ohio's new president received his bachelor's degree in political science from Northwestern in 1950 and served in the U.S. Navy before returning to his Alma Mater to study law. He received the Juris Doctor in 1956. He served as editor-in-chief of the Northwestern University Law Review, was elected to the Order of the Coif and ranked second in a class of 125.

Admitted to the Illinois Bar in 1956, Dr. Sowle was associated with the Chicago law firm of Sidley and Austin for two years. He joined the Northwestern law school faculty in 1958 as an assistant professor and became assistant dean in 1962. He was named associate dean in 1963.

MRS. Sowle, the former Kathryn Sharp Dix, a Wellesley graduate, also received the Juris Doctor from Northwestern in 1956. She was a member of the Order of the Coif, assistant editor of the Journal of Criminal Law, Criminology and Police Science . . . and she was the top student in the class. "Had the presidential selection committee looked closer," Sowle said in an interview in May, "they might have selected my wife instead."

The Sowles and their two children—Leslie Ann, 10, and Stephen

HARRY SNAVELY '51

Dix, 8—moved to Ohio in 1965 when Dr. Sowle became professor and dean of the College of Law at Cincinnati.

During his first official visit to Athens May 4, Dr. Sowle talked with top administrators, met with a group of students and appeared on a WOUB-TV press conference.

HE answered questions on a wide range of topics, and he joked about the “crazy job” of a university president in 1969. “Friends have offered condolences on my accepting this position,” he said, but at the same time he gave the distinct impression that he had made the right decision.

Admitting that Vernon Alden would be “a hard act to follow,” Sowle feels his chief qualification for the presidency is his law training, with its emphasis upon defining issues and weighing alternatives.

The new president made it clear he did not wish to jump into the president’s chair Aug. 1 without a great deal of listening, learning and prior planning. His plans, he said, included spending at least half his time on the Athens campus from May through July in order to familiarize himself with University affairs and personnel.

During a Saturday morning interview in mid-June in his temporary office on the third floor of Cutler Hall, Jan Kissner Cady, ’65, and I talked with Dr. Sowle about his general ideas on education and how he hoped to apply them to running Ohio University.

We found him to be cordial, relaxed and eager to discuss his general philosophy of education. He warned us ahead of time that he did not feel ready to discuss specific problem areas or changes he might be considering, but he promised to talk with us again once he was on the job full time and occupying the president’s first floor Cutler office.

—Max A. Schaible

Schaible: At the time of your appointment as Ohio University's 16th president, it was reported in the press that you had received several other offers, including the presidency of Northwestern University. What were the major factors which influenced you to accept the position at Ohio University?

Sowle: I felt this institution — in terms of its current state of development — presented tremendous challenges to an incoming president. My decision to come here was based not upon any negative feelings about other institutions but rather upon the strengths and the needs of this one. The University has grown rapidly and made tremendous strides forward under the administration of Dr. Baker and more recently under the Alden administration. I saw the need for consolidation and refinement and recognized that the mood within the University was one for a searching analysis of where we are and where we're going.

I liked the people I found here and I liked the atmosphere of the campus. I also liked the fact that it's located in an area of the state and the country where a university can make a substantial contribution to regional progress.

Cady: What role do you believe a university should play in today's society?

Sowle: Our first and primary objective, it seems to me, should be to provide the best education possible for the young people who are here, in order to prepare them for the heavy responsibilities they will face shortly after leaving the institution.

Secondly, we have a tremendous obligation — through our research — to the country and to the world to advance the frontiers of knowledge and to help solve problems outside the University. This includes not only “pure” research but also practical field work in a variety of areas.

Cady: Are you implying then that Ohio University has a responsibility to southeastern Ohio?

Sowle: Yes. Our location in Ap-

Cady: What is the first major problem—or problem area—to which you intend to address yourself?

Sowle: At this time I really can't pick out a particular area and say this is the major problem area. One of the first things that will interest me, however, is how we can govern ourselves most effectively. We have to recognize that there are many elements within the University that must be heard on all major problems—the students, the faculty, the nonacademic staff. Therefore, to a considerable extent in the early days, I will be concerned with developing a structure whereby we can have the input of the best ideas and the best thoughts on the problems that face the University, a structure within the University which will guarantee, hopefully, the most effective governance and decision-making processes available to us.

Once we can settle on how to go about this—and if we do it right—our progress as an institution will presumably be on a sound basis and will enjoy the support of at least most of the people who are affected by these decisions.

Schaible: As a former faculty member at Northwestern and at the University of Cincinnati, how do you visualize the role of the faculty in the decision-making process?

Sowle: I don't think this University or any other should reach a major policy decision without substantial input from and consultation with the faculty. We're long past the day when one man or even several men can make all of the major decisions with little or no consultation with the faculty or indeed with the students. This is a community and all of the views of the community must be represented.

One danger a university must guard against, however, is allowing any one particular group, be it faculty or otherwise, to become so consumed in governance and policy decisions that it becomes paralyzed to some extent in performing its main role. Obviously, the faculty—if my analysis of education is correct—has its major role to play in the classroom and a similar but less time-consuming role to play in research and public service. A faculty member simply cannot devote half or two-thirds or three-quarters of his time to the governance of the University and, at the same time, perform his teaching and other duties effectively.

I think it is essential that we develop ways in which the faculty can make its valuable contribution to the decision-making process without giving the faculty member the feeling he's spending an inordinate amount of time on it.

Cady: By and large, the students who spoke at commencements at major universities throughout the country this year proved that student unrest and disillusionment are not confined to a small core of malcontents and radicals. What are your thoughts on how to bridge the generation gap and incorporate student dissatisfaction into constructive programs?

Sowle: I don't think there is any real generation gap between the thinking student and the thoughtful administrator or faculty member. Those who are willing to spend time thinking about these things are probably in agreement that there are many major problems within our universities.

One obvious area is that of curriculum. We're doing an adequate job, but we could be doing a much better job. We haven't really addressed ourselves in the way we should to the task of keeping the curriculum current with the needs of the time and the needs of the students we're trying to reach.

We've also been deficient in our management of faculty recruiting and retention. In many of our institutions, our recruiting methods have been haphazard and slipshod, and we haven't been totally effective in bringing the best people into the educational process at the faculty level. And once we've brought a palachia provides us with a marvelous opportunity to perform many effective services which perhaps only the University—as a catalyst and a consolidator — can provide in meeting the area's needs.

In continuing to fulfill our regional obligation, I hope that our field research will involve students as well as faculty. Student participation of this sort can be a tremendously meaningful educational experience and enable the student to make an important contribution.

Schaible: What do you feel is the primary function of higher education?

Sowle: We bring young people to the University at an age when they are eager to learn and to broaden their horizons. In my opinion, our primary role is to develop their maturity, to develop their ability to perceive what the issues and problems are, to bring rational analysis to solving problems and to develop in the students the courage to act when they feel action is necessary.

Our primary objective should be to provide the best education possible for the young people.

faculty member on, we haven't been as effective as we should be in evaluating his performance. I think many students feel the quality of the instruction they're getting is not all that it could and should be, and I think that administrators and faculty members who have given thought to the problem are in agreement with them.

Another real problem is the immense growth and consequent impersonality of many of our institutions. Students are concerned about waiting in long registration lines, about trying to find a seat in the library, about trying to get an answer to a question which could and should be simply answered. Again, I think the concerned administrator or faculty member is just as troubled by those things as the average student is.

We have yet to develop the means whereby we can cope effectively with these problems in our universities, and as a result, the students have become disillusioned. Only a relatively small number of them have taken to the streets, as it were, to try to dramatize the problems, but to consider those who have been disruptive as the only concerned people within the universities is totally wrong. I think probably a majority of the students in most of our institutions today are very concerned.

They haven't taken matters into their own hands because they may still feel we can deal rationally with the problems. The leaders in our universities must make it clear that this is their attitude, too; that these problems can be managed, that we can make improvements in curriculum and in the quality of instruction and that we can make very large institutions somehow more responsive to the students' needs.

Schaible: In an address you gave last October before the Commercial Club of Cincinnati, you referred to the "growing army of frustrated and embittered young people who harbor deep grievances not only against society but also against the colleges and universities which serve as their staging areas." If these students are harboring deep grievances now—and if they're not resolved, then what can we expect of these students when they become alumni? How will they feel toward the university?

Sowle: You've put your finger on a very important, practical consideration. If they leave the university with their frustration unabated, the effects will be considerable. Universities, both public and certainly private, are going to have to depend increasingly upon the financial support of their alumni. Today most of the state universities are still underfinanced, and the public coffers simply will not provide all the resources that will be needed in the years ahead. If the students leave in an embittered state, as a practical matter we cannot look forward to substantial financial support from them. Moreover, many of them will go into state legislatures and into other positions of public influence, and their attitudes there will be shaped in large part by the frustrations they carry away with them when they leave their college or university. Their hostility and frustrations could also have a negative effect on their roles as citizens.

The more immediate problem universities face, of course, is whether this frustration is going to release itself in the form of disruption on the campus.

I'm more fearful, however, that if our graduates go away with a negative attitude, they can be harmful to the university in terms of inflicting difficulties upon it. I would much prefer that a student graduate with a reasonably good feeling toward the institution, recognizing that in all human institutions, perfection is never accomplished. As a result, when the opportunity arose, either in his role as a donor to the university or as a legislator attempting to deal with the problems that impinge upon the university or as a citizen encouraging young people to attend his Alma Mater, he could exercise his prerogatives in a way that would be beneficial to the university.

Alumni Association Honors A Baker's Dozen . . . Plus Two

Certificates of Merit, the highest award given by the Ohio University Alumni Association, were presented to 13 alumni—one of them posthumously—Saturday, June 7, in the Baker Center Ballroom.

The occasion, at which two persons were named honorary alumni, was the annual Alumni Luncheon during commencement weekend.

Members of the Golden Anniversary Class of 1919 were the guests of honor at the luncheon. The class received special recognition during the program, and Brandon T. Grover Sr., a member of the class, served as spokesman in responding for his classmates.

Other members of the Class of 1919 who were registered for the weekend were Isabel Bacon and Walter E. Barnhill, both of Youngstown; Otis A. Burton, Pickerington; Mrs. Maud Peairs Clark, Frankfort; Mrs. Marzuela Richards English, Chicago; Mrs. Clara Henry Lochary, Pomeroy; Edith L. Porter, Vincent; Dr. Leo G. Robinson, Springfield; Mrs. Ann McNaghten Tate and Mary McNaghten, both of Columbus; and Julia Cable, Mrs. Melba White Hellebrandt and Mrs. Ivalue Beekman Ryan, all Athens.

Eugene F. Rinta, '38, president of the Alumni Association, presided at the luncheon, and William K. Loftus, '58, executive director of the association, served as toastmaster. The address was given by University President Vernon R. Alden.

Five alumni were elected to membership on the board of directors of the association. Elected to three-year terms were Milton O. Berry, '50, former president of the Atlanta alumni chapter and regional vice president of the Crosby Corp.; Mrs. Olive Will Holmes, '38, juvenile court judge, Court of Common Pleas, Hamilton Co.; Dr. Wilfred Konneker, '43, MS '47, vice president and general manager of the Diagnostics Division, Mallinckrodt Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo., and Robert W. Reider, '39, president of Ohio Radio, Inc., in Norwalk.

Paul Brickman, '46, vice president and director of client services at Fuller and Smith and Ross, Inc., Chicago advertising and public relations agency, was elected to a two-year term to fill the unexpired term of William Steinhardt, '50. Steinhardt, elected last year as a director from Boston, resigned when he joined the University staff as director of public affairs.

Donald S. Shafer, '37, of Palatine, Ill., a member of the alumni board and chairman of the awards committee, read the citations for the Certificates of Merit and they were presented by President Rinta and President Alden.

Certificates and honorary memberships in the Alumni Association were awarded to Mrs. Irene Olson of Athens and Duncan M. Baxter of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Olson, the widow of Thor Olson, was cited in recognition of her "devotion to Ohio as mother and wife of a family long associated with service to the University."

Olson, a member of the physical education faculty, died in 1961 at the age of 80. Both the Olson children are graduates of Ohio, Thora in 1937 and Hjalmar in 1939. A granddaughter, Karen Atkins Bump, graduated in 1961. Mrs. Olson has been house-mother at Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity for the past 13 years and she also has taught physical education, folk dancing, swimming and dancing at the University and in Athens. She received the Sertoma Club award for outstanding citizenship in 1966.

Baxter, vice president for special services of the Detroit Steel Corp.,

was honored for his "service as a trustee of Ohio University and for his services rendered which are of notable and enduring benefit."

Baxter, associated with Detroit Steel since 1933, was appointed to the Ohio University Board of Trustees in June 1964 by Gov. James A. Rhodes. Baxter was one of the prime movers in establishing a full-time campus of Ohio University at Portsmouth. He was a charter member of the Portsmouth campus advisory board of trustees and the Ohio University-Portsmouth Development Fund, Inc., which has raised more than a quarter of a million dollars to further the growth of the local campus.

Honored posthumously for outstanding service to the University was Everett C. "Pete" Shingleton, '37. A former varsity athlete, Shingleton was living in Cuyahoga Falls when he died June 17, 1967, at the age of 52. He joined the B.F. Goodrich Co. in 1937 and at his death was manager of retread tire and material sales.

A former president of the Akron alumni chapter, Shingleton was cited for "outstanding services as a loyal supporter of the University and its athletic department exemplified by his influencing many fine young men in making a decision to attend Ohio." Mrs. Shingleton accepted the certificate for the family.

Dr. Paul J. Anderson, '49, professor and director of neuropathology at Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York, received the Certificate of Merit for "outstanding achievement in the field of medicine through contributions in neuropathological research and medical school instruction and publication."

The Akron native received his MD from the University of Chicago in 1953. After internship and residency, he underwent special research training as a Fellow of the National Institutes of Health and completed his training at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University. He has been director of neuropathology at Mt. Sinai since 1958. He became a full professor at the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in 1966.

Dr. Anderson was certified as a diplomate by the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology in 1959 and the American Board of Pathology in 1960. He has published more than 60 medical articles.

Mrs. Janice Battin Bixler, '26, director of Baker Center since its opening in 1953, was honored for "outstanding service as a capable administrator, friend and counselor to the thousands of students who have passed through the gates of the Ohio University campus."

A native of Athens, Mrs. Bixler was art supervisor in the Mannington, W. Va., public schools, an employee of the federal government in Zanesville and a member of the good will department of Lazarus Co. in Columbus before returning to the University in 1947 as head resident of Boyd Hall. She was named acting dean of women in 1951. In 1953 Mrs. Bixler was elected to honorary membership in Mortar Board, senior women's honor society.

Oakley C. Collins, '37, state senator from Ohio's 18th district, was cited for "outstanding achievements in state government and for his many contributions to education through efforts to gain public and legislative support as a leader in the Ohio General Assembly and as chairman of the education committee."

Collins, who lives in Ironton, was a high school superintendent for 19 years and has been president of the Collins Mining Co. since 1942. He was elected to the Ohio House of Representatives for one term in 1946 and he was elected to the Senate in 1951. He is now serving his eighth term. His son, Oakley Clark Jr., is a prelaw senior at Ohio; the Collins' other son, Mark Allen, is a junior at Ironton High.

Edwin W. Darby, '42, financial editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, received the Certificate of Merit for "outstanding achievement in journalism and financial reporting and for contributions through on-the-scene studies of economic conditions around the world."

From 1948 to 1955, Darby was Time magazine's White House correspondent. For the next two years he was chief Midwest correspondent for Time and Fortune in Chicago. Three years after he took over the Sun-Times' financial desk, Time called the paper's financial pages "the best in town."

Jack D. Gilbert, '52, director of public relations for Ohio Attorney General Paul W. Brown, was cited for "outstanding service to Ohio University as alumni secretary and for his continued efforts in the promotion of good will and financial support of the University."

Gilbert was sports editor of the Athens Messenger from 1953 to 1957 when he became news editor. He was named executive director of the Alumni Association in 1961 and served until 1966 when he opened a PR firm. He joined the attorney general's staff in 1968.

Robert A. Heimsch, '43, research scientist for the Monsanto Co. in St. Louis, Mo., was honored for "outstanding service to the University as an alumni leader and for his imaginative and inspirational representation of the University in community and professional affairs."

Heimsch is a former treasurer, vice president and president of the St. Louis alumni chapter. Active in city government, he presently is serving as an alderman for the City of Des Peres, Mo. The Dayton native has been with Monsanto for 25 years and has written eight scientific papers and received 20 patents.

David L. Hostetler, MFA '49, professor of art and chairman of the Ohio sculpture department, was recognized for "outstanding accomplishment in the field of fine arts in which he has gained international acclaim Hostetler '49 for his unique artistic style in wood sculpture."

Hostetler, who has attracted national attention with his sculptures of the American woman, has had more than 30 one-man exhibitions of his sculpture since joining the Ohio faculty in 1949. He has been the subject of two major network television shows and has appeared as a guest lecturer on the National Educational Television network.

Dr. William S. Jasper Sr., '41, urological surgeon from Lancaster, was honored for "outstanding service to the University by contributing tireless effort and leadership to several facets of the Ohio University Alumni Association on local, regional and national levels."

Jasper '41

Dr. Jasper received his MD at the George Washington University School of Medicine, served his internship at St. Luke's in Cleveland and was a resident in general surgery at St. Thomas in Akron. He completed residencies in orthopedic surgery at Walter Reed Hospital and in urology at Ohio State University Hospital. Dr. Jasper is a Fellow in the American College of Surgeons and a diplomate of the American Board of Urology.

Dr. Emil S. Kustin, '40, an oral surgeon in New York City, received the alumni certificate for "outstanding service to the University by providing spirit and organizational talent to the growth and improvement of his alumni chapter while serving as its president."

Kustin '40

Dr. Kustin received the DDS degree from the University of Pennsylvania College of Dental Medicine in 1944 and served as a battalion dental surgeon in the U.S. Army in 1945-56 in Asia and the Pacific. Among other professional organizations, Dr. Kustin is a member of the American Academy of Oral Medicine and the American Dental Assn., and he is president of the New York University Postgraduate Oral Rehabilitation Society.

The Kustins' son, Larry, is a sophomore at Ohio, and their daughter, Martha, is a high school student in Manhattan.

Anthony O. Mathias, '16, retired Cincinnati educator and high school principal, was recognized for "outstanding leadership in education through a devotion to the schools he has served and for dedicated efforts toward the welfare of educators on state and national levels."

Mathias '16

He began his career as an elementary school teacher, was principal of Wayne Township High, superintendent of West Union schools in Adams County and served for 37 years as teacher, assistant principal and principal at Withrow High School in Cincinnati. Mathias retired in 1956 but directed summer schools in Cincinnati until 1960.

Ann Mumma, '29, MA '41, administrative specialist in the dean's office in the College of Education at Ohio, was honored for "outstanding achievement and dedication to education by providing counseling and leadership to thousands of students who have become educators."

Mumma '29

Miss Mumma, who has completed 40 years' service in the dean's office, is an active member of Kappa Delta Pi, national education honorary, and she served as counselor of Ohio's undergraduate chapter from 1946 to 1968. She currently is honorary counselor. Miss Mumma also is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, AA-UW and the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mrs. Joan Herrold Wood, '52, account executive in public relations at J. Walter Thompson Co. in New York City, was cited for "outstanding service by providing long and continuous leadership to Ohio alumni through her efforts to organize and maintain support on the local and regional alumni chapter areas."

Wood '52

Mrs. Wood is vice president and social chairman of the Greater New York-New Jersey alumni chapter. She was a feature writer for the Pittsburgh Press before accepting a position with the Thompson firm, one of the most prestigious agencies in the country.

The wife of Manhattan lawyer David C. Wood, Mrs. Wood is the daughter of the late Gordon W. Herrold, '24, and Mrs. Herrold (Lucille W. Nazor '24) of Lancaster. Mrs. Wood's sister, Dr. Joyce N. Herrold of Columbus, graduated from Ohio in 1954.

VERNON AND MARION ALDEN DAY:

'... ceremony, praise, nostalgia and student protest'

FRIDAY, May 23 — officially designated Vernon and Marion Alden Day by the Board of Trustees — was described in the Athens Messenger the following Sunday as a "Fellini-like mixture of ceremony, praise, nostalgia and student protest."

To pre-Fellini generations, however, the scene more closely resembled an early-day melodrama with cheers for the "hero" and boos and hisses for the "villain."

Cast as the "good guys," Vernon and Marion Alden and their four children were the beneficiaries of the ceremony and praise, as well as most of the nostalgia. The "bad guys" — as played by members of the Board of Trustees and personified by Board Chairman Fred H. Johnson, '22 — were the object of student scorn and anger throughout the day.

The student protest arose from dissatisfaction with the board's refusal earlier in May to take action on a "no-hours" policy for freshman and sophomore women.

The activities honoring the University's departing first family actually began Thursday evening at a concert in which campus groups performed works selected by the Aldens.

The Friday agenda began at 2 p.m. with the dedication of the University's newest building as the Vernon Roger Alden Library, climaxing Alden's seven and one-half years as president.

While some 200 dignitaries were assembling inside the library for the dedication, approximately 600 students were engaged in a protest rally outside the new building. Shortly after the dedication began, about 200 of the demonstrators filed into the fourth floor area where the ceremonies were taking place, filling the remaining seats and standing in the aisles.

Joseph Shubert, State of Ohio librarian, and Thompson M. Little, director of University libraries, each gave short addresses. "For many of you who have been active in its planning, dedication of this library represents an end," Little said. "From my point of view, this end merely marks the beginning for me and for many others. What we are dedicating is not only a job well done; it is a job well begun."

Introduced to the accompaniment of hisses from the students, Johnson opened his remarks with greetings to the faculty, administrators and friends, whereupon the students shouted, "Students! What about students?" His next statement, that "the only reason for the existence of a university is the education of its young men and women," drew prolonged applause from the students.

During his brief speech, Johnson recognized Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Shapter, '21 (Margaret Durrett '19), of Columbus and acknowledged their "generous $5,000 gift" for books.

Johnson's announcement that the library was being named for Alden touched off lengthy applause from the audience, and he then asked the Alden children to unveil the library's official portrait of their father. The portrait, commissioned by the Board of Trustees, was painted by New York artist Charles Fox, introduced to the audience by Johnson.

Alden's acceptance of the building for the University ended the formal ceremonies, and a number of the students besieged Johnson and the other trustees in attendance to question University decision-making. Other students mingled with the invited guests at the reception in adjoining rooms.

KEN STEINHOFF '70

PRESIDENT AND MRS. Vernon R. Alden pose in front of Alden's portrait in the new library named after him May 23, 1969. The painting, commissioned by the Board of Trustees, was done by New York artist Charles Fox.

Friday evening Johnson presided at a black tie dinner in the Aldens' honor in Nelson Commons on the South Green. About 250 students gathered in front of the building and 100 of them formed a double column through which guests had to pass to enter the dining room.

The students rose to their feet to applaud as the Alden family arrived. When the students learned that Johnson had entered through a back door, they began to chant, "We want Fred!" and many of them kept up the chant all evening.

"Few people carry their own cheering section with them," Johnson told the 400 guests as the dinner began. The number of students outside decreased as the evening wore on, but many stood at the windows to watch the diners and chant until the program ended.

The honors awarded to Alden during the evening included Ohio Senate Resolution No. 68, "expressing admiration and gratitude to Vernon R. Alden and his services to education in Ohio and the nation." The Senate citation was read by Sen. Oakley Collins, '35, of Ironton.

Col. W. H. Bohn, professor of military science, representing the Department of the Army, presented the Outstanding Civilian Service Medal to Alden in recognition of his support of ROTC. Richard Hart, Garfield Heights freshman, presented the outgoing president with an appreciation plaque signed by representatives of student organizations.

The master of ceremonies then recognized Carr Liggett, '16, unofficial poet laureate of the alumni body, who provided a necessary note of levity with his "Athens Exodus . . . An Ode to Vernon Alden."

Speaking for the Alumni Association, President Eugene F. Rinta, '38, presented the Aldens with four watercolors of campus scenes painted by Paul Bradford, senior designer in the Office of University Publications.

The Board of Trustees' gifts to the Aldens included a bronze sculpture by David Hostetler, MFA '49, from his American Woman series and a Steinway baby grand.

After a brief response from Mrs. Alden, in which she expressed her gratitude, President Alden reiterated their appreciation for the "magnificent gifts" and for the honors awarded him.

"My new responsibility in Boston will be challenging and I look forward to it with great enthusiasm," he said, "but in more ways than it is comfortable to contemplate, our family will miss Ohio University. We have many friends here and we will miss all of you."

"I am genuinely sorry not to be staying on to see the fulfillment of all the dreams and hopes and aspirations that we have for Ohio University, but I will be watching from a distance with interest, with enthusiasm and with great respect for those who will one day make Ohio University what I always believed she would be and should be: a truly distinguished university."

COMMENCEMENT 1969

During commencement exercises Sunday, June 8, for more than 2,412 degree candidates, Vernon R. Alden became the third person in the University's history to receive the coveted Founders' Citation.

The honor, bestowed by Trustees' Chairman Fred H. Johnson, '22, was accompanied by an honorary doctor of literature degree.

In reading the citation to the 7,000 assembled in the new Convocation Center, Johnson said Alden's leadership since 1962 has gained national prominence and prestige for Ohio University.

The first Founders' Citation was presented to Alden's predecessor, President John C. Baker, when he retired in November 1961. John W. Galbreath, '20, received the "honorary degree plus" in June 1967 on his completion of 27 years as a member of the Board of Trustees.

As the 1969 commencement speaker, President Alden discussed the "considerable pressures" a university president must face and said it has become clear to him that universities must seek the help of those outside academic walls if they are to do their job well.

"There are large social questions which society as a whole will judge," he said, "and society will decide what it wants from higher education and what it is willing to pay. The unquestioning belief in the value of higher education seems near its end."

There were a few times during his years as president when Alden said he had the feeling he "was standing alone against considerable pressure that would diminish the University if I acceded to it."

"The mail of every university president these days is pretty heavy with advice to 'get tough' with 'demanding' students," he said. "How many of those who write would actually be tough if they occupied the president's chair?"

"Some of you are going to join the establishment and become conservative faster than you think,"

Alden said to the degree candidates. "I venture to ask this question of you because I am leaving: What are you going to do when my successor is in a tough spot? Are you going to put an impossible pressure on him by asking him to do something that you would not do if you were in his chair?"

Four distinguished citizens received the honorary doctor of humane letters degree from Provost Thomas S. Smith. The recipients were Dr. John A. Hannah, administrator of the Agency for International Development and former president of Michigan State University; Granville Hicks, author, reviewer and critic; dramatic soprano Marjorie Lawrence, professor of voice at Southern Illinois University, and Dr. Henry Viscardi Jr., president and chairman of the board of Abilities, Inc., West Hempstead, L. I.

Dr. Roma A. King, professor of English and one of the country's foremost Browning scholars, was named 1969-70 Ohio University Distinguished Professor at commencement. Dr. King's sixth book, The Focusing Artifice: The Poetry of Robert Browning, is a Modern Language Association Book Club selection. He also is general editor of the 13-volume edition, The Complete Poetry of Robert Browning: With Variant Readings, Annotated. The first volume will be released Aug. 1.

The 1969 Nicolas Salgo Distinguished Teaching Award was presented to Dr. Victor A. Grieco, associate professor of management. Grieco was selected for the award by business administration faculty and students.

Bachelor degrees were awarded to 2,207, master's degrees numbered 163, 26 received PhD degrees and 16 associate in arts degrees were awarded during the University's 216th commencement.

Among the special awards was the presentation of the Royal Society of Arts Citation and Medal to a graduating fine arts student.

SOPRANO Marjorie Lawrence, who has won acclaim in the great opera houses of the world, was one of four recipients of the honorary doctor of humane letters at Ohio June 8. As President Alden presents the degree, Graduate College Dean Taylor Culbert positions her doctoral hood. Miss Lawrence is now professor of voice at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

Miss Lawrence, representing the British organization, made the presentation to Stephen A. Frank of Dayton. Ohio University is one of six U.S. universities chosen for the annual award.

The senior farewell was given by Richard H. Brown of North Brunswick, N.J., class president.

JOHNSON REELECTED

Fred H. Johnson, '22, a member of the University Board of Trustees since 1947, was reelected chairman of the board for 1969-70 at the board's regular commencement meeting in Athens.

At the same time, Russell P. Herrold, '16, of Zanesville was elected vice chairman, and Paul R. O'Brien, '32, of Athens was reelected secretary.

President of Rankin, Johnson and Co., an insurance firm with offices in Columbus, Newark and Zanesville, Johnson also is president of Fidelity National Life Insurance Co. and a director of the Citizens Holding Co., both of Columbus.

Johnson was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree by the University in 1965 and he holds the Alumni Association's highest award, the Certificate of Merit. The association further honored him in 1961 with a silver bowl in recognition of his outstanding service.

The new vice chairman of the board has been a trustee since 1963. A retired vice president of the Anchor Hocking Glass Corp., Lancaster, Herrold is chairman of the board and a director of The First Trust and Savings Bank of Zanesville. He was president of the University Alumni Association from '54 to '57.

Herrold, a graduate of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, joined Anchor Hocking in 1939 after 12 years as president of Mosaic Tile Co., Zanesville.

TROPHY WINNERS

For the seventh time in the past 11 years, Ohio's Bobcats have won the Dave Reese Memorial Cup, the symbol of all-around sports supremacy in the Mid-American Conference.

The trophy was awarded to the Bobcats Saturday, May 24, in Kalamazoo, Mich., following the MAC's 22nd annual track and field championships. The 'Cats racked up 56½ points, the highest number recorded by any winner since the MAC first awarded the Reese Cup at the end of the 1958-59 school year.

On their way to winning the cup this year, the Bobcats picked off conference championships in football, swimming, golf and baseball. They finished second in basketball, wrestling, track and tennis. The 'Cats' lone third place was in cross country competition.

Western Michigan finished second in the conference race for the Reese Cup with 42½ points and Miami's Redskins came in third with 41. The previous record had been held by Miami, who finished the 1955-56 season with 53½ points to win the Reese Cup.

IRONTON SCHOLARSHIPS

A $21,000 bequest for student scholarships has been made to Ohio University's academic center at Ironton.

Mrs. George W. Trumbo, the former Linnie Heid, '18, of Lawrence County, left the money to be used for scholarships for worthy Lawrence County students who are enrolled at the Ironton center.

Mrs. Trumbo died Oct. 31, 1968.

GRIDIRON SCHEDULE

The Ohio Bobcats open the 1969 football season on home ground Saturday, Sept. 20, when they meet Kent State in Peden Stadium. Kick-off time is 1:50 p.m. EDT. The day of the Ohio-Kent game has been designated as Band Day, and high school bands from throughout the area will perform at half time.

Other home games for the Bobcats include the 1969 Homecoming game against Xavier Oct. 11, the Western Michigan encounter Nov. 1 during Dads' Weekend, Bowling Green on Nov. 8 and Cincinnati Nov. 15. Kick-off time for home games (except the Kent State opener) is 1:30 p.m. EDT.

Season tickets for the five home games are priced at $18 and single game reserved seat tickets cost $4. Orders should be addressed to Dale Schumacher, Athletic Ticket Manager, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio 45701. Checks should be made out to the Ohio University Athletic Association and include 25¢ for mailing and handling.

The away game schedule begins Sept. 27 at Minnesota and continues Oct. 4 at Toledo. The Bobcats will be at Miami University Oct. 18 and at Penn State Oct. 25. They'll close the 1969 season with a game Nov. 22 at Marshall University.

RIVER REROUTING BEGINS

Mid-April groundbreaking ceremonies marked the beginning of an ambitious, $10 million project to end the costly flooding of the Hocking River in Athens.

The rechanneling project entails moving about 5.5 miles of the river to the south of its present channel, thereby eliminating about 86 percent of the spring flood damages inflicted upon the University and the community. University flood losses alone run between $250,000 and $500,000 each time the Hocking leaves its banks.

Speakers at the groundbreaking ceremonies included Ohio Attorney General Paul W. Brown, Ohio Director of Natural Resources Fred E. Morr, 10th District Congressman Clarence E. Miller, Brig. Gen. Willard C. Roper of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Ohio University Board of Trustees Chairman Fred H. Johnson, '22, and President Alden.

The rerouting project is expected to take about two years to complete and the area should be free of any extensive flooding after the spring 1970 season.

BLACK STUDIES OKAYED

Assurance of funds to establish a Black Studies Institute at Ohio University was guaranteed by President Alden April 25.

Following a meeting with the steering committee of the Black Student Development Center, Alden said, "We have pledged at least $250,000 of operational and private funds for the institute by Sept. 1. Furthermore, we will appoint an executive dean for Afro-American affairs."

The executive dean will work directly with the president, provost and executive vice president in developing a program for black students. Dr. Ronald Williams, assistant professor of speech pathology, audiology and speech science, has been named acting dean for Afro-American affairs to work with the steering committee and University officials during the summer.

FACULTY RETIREMENTS

Emeritus status has been conferred by the trustees on eight retiring faculty whose combined service totals 261 years.

Ralph "Sid" Beckert, '23, professor emeritus of accounting, joined the faculty in 1927. As treasurer of the Alumni Association, he is known to hundreds of Ohio graduates as "Mr. Alumni," and he was named Outstanding Alumnus in 1968. Beckert holds an MA from the University of Cincinnati.

Isabelle M. Work, '24, also joined the faculty in 1927. The professor emerita of art holds an MA from Columbia. Among the first to teach in the University's Nigeria project, Miss Work also has traveled widely in Europe, Central and South America, Africa and Asia. Her watercolors and acrylics have won numerous awards.

Arthur H. Rhoads, '29, director of intramural sports, is now associate professor emeritus of health, physical education and recreation. A member of the faculty for 40 years, he also was one of the first participants in the Nigeria education project. He holds an MA from Columbia and he is well known as a football and basketball official.

Joseph E. Thackrey, assistant professor emeritus of music education, joined the faculty in 1934 after teaching at Greeley State Teachers College in Colorado and in the Louisville, Ky., schools. He earned an MA from Columbia in 1934, and he served in both world wars.

Professor Emeritus of Education Forest L. Shoemaker received his PhD from Ohio State in 1935 and joined the Ohio faculty in 1938. He is a member of Kappa Phi Kappa and Phi Delta Kappa honoraries and the author of articles on the history of Ohio secondary education.

Christopher Lane, executive director of the University's Monomoy Theater on Cape Cod, has been named associate professor emeritus of theater after 26 years on the faculty. Lane, who holds an MA from Michigan State, has directed numerous University Theater productions.

Dr. Vivian Roberts, professor emerita of home economics, has been associated with the University for 26 years. Director of the School of Home Economics from 1943 to 1966, she also has been coordinator of international programs in home economics since 1960.

Dr. Roberts, who holds a PhD from the University of Chicago, taught at Connecticut College and Oregon State before coming to Athens. She is the author of numerous studies on nutrition and metabolism.

Allyne Bane, associate professor emerita of home economics, came to Ohio University in 1950. She has an MA from Columbia, and she was head of the instructional sheet department of Simplicity Patterns. Miss Bane is the author of Creative Sewing and Tailoring, both used as college home economics texts.

CHUTTER FUND SET UP

A special fund has been established to purchase books for Ohio University's new library in memory of Mildred Chutter. Miss Chutter, who died in Athens May 31, was a librarian in the catalog department for 36 years. She retired in 1963.

Miss Chutter was born in England and she was a graduate of Mount Holyoke College and the New York State Library School. She was employed in the New York State Library and at Middlebury College in Vermont before coming to Athens in 1927.

She was an active member of the Athens League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women and the Daughters of the American Revolution, and she was an elder of the First Presbyterian Church.

Gifts to the Chutter memorial should be made payable to The Ohio University Fund, Inc., and sent to the Office of the Director, Vernon Roger Alden Library, Athens, Ohio 45701.

NEW PRESIDENTS

Two of the University's top administrators — Provost Thomas S. Smith and Executive Vice President James J. Whalen — are leaving Athens this summer to become presidents of private institutions.

Dr. Smith has accepted the presidency of Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis., and Dr. Whalen will be the first lay president of Newton College of the Sacred Heart, a Catholic women's college in Newton, Mass.

The provost joined the Ohio faculty in 1952 as an assistant professor of physics. In 1961 he was promoted to full professor and appointed assistant to the president by President John C. Baker. The following year President Alden appointed him vice president for academic affairs and he was named provost in 1967.

Commenting on Smith's departure, Alden called him "superbly equipped, by experience, attitude and ability, to lead a first-rate liberal arts university, which Lawrence most certainly is. He has distinguished himself at Ohio University as a teacher, a scholar, a participant in significant community activities and as an academic administrator."

Whalen came to Ohio in 1964 to develop a psychological counseling center for students. He was named dean of students in 1965 and in 1966 he became a vice president. He was appointed to the new position of executive vice president in 1968.

President Alden described Whalen as an "innovative and creative administrator who has also shown unusual executive ability in the complex operations of a large university."

ALUMNI CLUB NEWS

by William K. Loftus, '58

The past six months have been very active ones for our local chapters. In Ohio, we have reports from Akron, Canton, Chillicothe, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Mt. Vernon, Toledo, Youngstown and Zanesville; out-of-state chapters reporting alumni events in their respective areas include Atlanta, Boston, Connecticut-Westchester, Indianapolis, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles, New York City, Pittsburgh, Washington, Buffalo and Rochester, N.Y., and Charlotte, N.C.

Several chapters across the country honored President Alden with testimonial dinners and luncheons. He was able to interrupt his busy schedule to visit alumni in Boston, New York City, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, Washington, Atlanta, Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo and Ridgeway, Conn.

Our mothers' clubs in Chillicothe, Dayton, Toledo and Cleveland also were active, and special note should be made of the $2,600 check presented to the University by the Cleveland Mothers' Club. Other groups who made contributions to the University in local scholarships or in other ways were Dayton Mothers' Club, Akron Mothers' Club, Columbus Women's Assn., Toledo Mothers' Club and the St. Louis, Massachusetts and Greater New York alumni chapters.

The following are brief analyses of our local clubs. You and the University will both benefit if you support the Alumni Association in your area.

Phoenix-Tucson: new, but growing well.

Los Angeles: a long-standing organization that has shown excellent continuous service.

Westchester-Connecticut: small, but potentially quite an asset; has excellent leadership and should develop well in 1969-70.

Washington, D.C.: many good alumni in the area; club should blossom this year.

Jacksonville, Miami, Orlando and Tampa: can always be counted on for enthusiastic turnouts; the University's basketball team will be in the area in December for the Hurricane Classic.

Atlanta: a great young chapter; excellent continuous leadership can always be counted on.

Chicago: beginning to really grow now; 1969-70 could be a fine year.

Indianapolis: recently lost a fine president, but has a very capable group of officers.

Greater Boston: a dynamic, well-organized young chapter; can be of help to alumni new to the area.

Minneapolis: began last year; should see some real growth this year.

Detroit: another new chapter in a location with a lot of alumni; several excellent leaders have been working to build interest.

St. Louis: a fine "old" chapter with excellent leadership and good local support.

Buffalo: a young chapter which has done a lot in a short time.

Greater New York City: one of the best; excellent leadership and local support; if you're in the area, you'll enjoy being a member.

Rochester: the surprise of 1968-69; young, but well-organized with fine local support; we expect a lot from this club this year.

Charlotte, N.C.: probably the chapter with the least alumni to draw from, but they get about 80 percent attendance at all their functions; an excellent "small" group.

Akron: good basic organization; can be counted on when needed.

Akron Women's: well-organized; receives good local support.

Akron Mothers': new, but well-supported; established local scholarship in first year of operation.

Canton: excellent leadership and potential; should do great things during 1969-70.

Chillicothe: good basic organiza-

Communicator-Prestidigitator Bill Loftus Named Executive Director of Alumni Affairs

The new executive director of Ohio alumni affairs is William K. Loftus, '58, associate director since September 1967. He succeeds Jack G. Ellis, '57, who became director of development April 9.

As executive director, Loftus has assumed the responsibility for the programs of the Alumni Association and for developing and maintaining alumni chapters throughout the country.

During his undergraduate days, Loftus was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership honorary, and president of Tau Kappa Alpha, forensic honorary. He was named a distinguished military graduate at commencement and prior to entering the Army in 1959, he began working toward the MA in interpersonal communication.

Since his return to Athens two years ago, Loftus has completed the requirements—except for his thesis—for his graduate degree and hopes to receive it at the end of this summer. Among his extracurricular interests is a penchant for prestidigitation, and he prizes his standing as an amateur magician.

The new alumni director is married to the former Claire Meyer, a 1968 Ohio alumna, and they have four children—Laura, 11; Debby, 10; Kurt, 8, and Keith, 6.

CHUCK BELL, '55, Atlanta club president, presents a Cutler Hall watercolor to Clarence Bolen, '26, who represented the earliest class at the club's dinner for President Alden March 29. Watching the presentation is Mrs. Bell. Thirty-five alumni attended the Ramada Inn affair. Milton O. Berry, '50, former chapter president, acted as toastmaster, and Bell presented the club's gifts—books on black history and culture for the new library and framed portraits of Atlanta's late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Ralph McGill—to Ohio's outgoing president.

Pittsburgh: the chapter with about the greatest potential of any group we have; should be able to do a lot this year.

Houston: a young club with fine leadership and local support.

Richmond, Va.: a fine basic group which really came through last year; should be able to grow in 1969-70.

Charleston, W. Va.: another young chapter with good leadership; helped immensely this past year.

Milwaukee: another young chapter which should grow this year; could use additional input from area alumni.

The following are areas where we hope to develop clubs in 1969-70: San Francisco, Philadelphia, Denver, Dallas and possibly Lexington, Ky. If you're interested in alumni activities in any of our "established" or "to-be-established" areas, please get in touch with us and we'll send you the names of alumni leaders in your area. Just drop a card to me at 108 Davis Hall, Athens, Ohio 45701.

You'll find that supporting your Alma Mater by providing your local alumni chapter with some of your time and talent can be a very worthwhile venture.

tion; needs more area alumni to lend a hand.

Chillicothe Mothers': has good leadership and meets regularly; has a local scholarship program.

Cincinnati: really started to move this past year; several events already scheduled for 1969-70; a potentially excellent alumni area.

Cleveland Men's: rejuvenated this past year with excellent leadership and potentially excellent alumni support; capable of great things in this coming year.

Cleveland Women's: long-standing, strong association; leadership and support have always been good.

Cleveland Mothers': one of the most active and enthusiastic groups we have; consistently noted for excellent leadership and local support.

Columbus: a growing, well-founded chapter with fine leadership; could use more area support.

Columbus Women's: another long-standing, fine association; excellent leadership and program planning.

Dayton: potentially excellent chapter with good basic leadership; with more area support could be one of our most dynamic chapters.

Dayton Mothers': always well-organized; does a lot for local students and can be counted on.

Mt. Vernon: a small group that's dedicated and willing to work; fine continuing leadership.

Toledo: continually improving with fine leadership; well-organized this past year.

Toledo Mothers': another dedicated, successful long-standing organization; has done a lot for area students and should be an excellent supporter again in 1969-70.

Youngstown: another potentially strong chapter with good local leadership and organization; we expect fine things from them in 1969-70.

Youngstown Women's: consistently a good organization and worthy of more area support; should be able to grow more this coming year.

Youngstown Mothers': has done a fine job this past year with excellent leadership and local interest.

Zanesville: a young, but dynamic and well-grounded organization with an excellent group of officers;

CENTRAL PARK's Tavern on the Green was the setting May 16 for the Greater New York chapter's farewell dinner dance for President and Mrs. Alden. The club's gift to the Aldens, presented by Wally Hodes, '43, left, vice president of the chapter, and Dr. Emil Kustin, '40, chapter president, was a Steuben bowl. More than 150 alumni and their spouses attended.

ALUMNI REPORT

AAUP HONORS STARCHER

The "Pulitzer Prize of the academic world" has gone to an Ohio alumnus, Dr. George W. Starcher, '26, president of the University of North Dakota.

The Alexander Meiklejohn Award for 1969, the highest honor awarded by the American Association of University Professors, was presented to

Dr. Starcher in May at the national convention of the association.

The award is presented each year to the American college or university administrator, trustee or board of trustees who, in the opinion of the association, has made the most significant contribution to academic freedom. The AAUP consists of 90,000 members from 1,166 U.S. colleges and universities.

The association commended President Starcher's "statesmanlike leadership" and stated that in the course of dealing with a number of incidents on the North Dakota campus, he "insisted on maintaining the necessary conditions for students to learn and grow—the right to express their criticism of what they disapprove, the right to hear whomever they choose and, even as the rest of us, from time to time, the right to be tasteless in expressing their points of view."

Among the incidents referred to was one which occurred in the spring of 1968 when a university group invited Gus Hall, general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, to speak on campus. A bitter outcry from political figures, as well as from other segments of the public, followed.

Dr. Starcher resisted efforts to stop Hall from speaking. On one occasion he pointed out that "The spirit of the University is that of a place where issues are examined and debated, not where opposing forces line up, each to suppress the other."

A more recent incident occurred last fall when a concert on the campus, supported with student funds, ended up $4,000 in the red. A student officer chose to express his sentiments by using unsold tickets to spell out in large letters on the ground a four-letter word "not uncommon in the farmlands of North Dakota." Subsequently, a photograph of the ticket collage was printed in the student newspaper. Once again, public indignation, in the form of newspaper editorials and demands from political figures and private citizens for the removal of the student editor, was high.

One representative editorial called for a "fumigation of the University" and concluded by stating that the "whole incident seems to point up the crying need for college and university executives with power and the nerve to lower the boom summarily on any student, or faculty member, violating the moral standards on which this nation built its strength, honor and greatness."

Dr. Starcher resisted the pressures and in the process "sought to achieve a better public understanding of the meaning and significance of academic freedom and of the relation between a university and its students," the award stated.

Before assuming the presidency of the University of North Dakota in 1954, Dr. Starcher taught in the mathematics department at Ohio University and subsequently served in a number of administrative positions. He was acting dean of the Graduate College, dean of the University College and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. His association with Ohio University spanned a period of 23 years.

Following his graduation from Ohio University, Dr. Starcher continued his studies at the University of Illinois, where he received the AM in 1927 and the PhD in 1930. Mrs. Starcher is the former Margaret Shaver, also '26. The Starchers have a son, George Jr., who lives in Paris, and two grandchildren.

During President Starcher's administration at North Dakota, enrollment has grown from 2,634 in 1954 to 8,249 in 1968-69 and the faculty has increased from 203 to more than 460.

RADIO-TV DIRECTOR

Dr. James Saunders, MFA '57, PhD '67, has been appointed director of the School of Radio-Television within the new Ohio University College of Communication. Dr. Saunders has served as assistant director of the school during the past year.

The new director has published extensively in the area of media economics and serves as an account consultant to a variety of broadcasting companies.

A graduate of Marshall University, Dr. Saunders was a member of the broadcasting faculty at Ohio University between 1957 and 1959 and returned to the University in 1963. He also has taught at Texas Christian and Kansas State universities and the University of Southern California.

His broadcasting employment includes work in sales and programming at WHTN radio and WSAZ-TV, both of Huntington, W.Va., and KFJZ-TV, Ft. Worth, Tex. He was chief instructor for management training for the West Coast division of the ABC television network in 1960.

Mrs. Saunders is the former Harriet L. Reich, '58.

SUMMER FULBRIGHT

Christopher R. Paulson, '65, is traveling and studying in Southeast Asia this summer on a Fulbright-Hays seminar grant.

An Afro-Asian history teacher at Mt. Greylock High School in Williamstown, Mass., Paulson is one of 20 college and high school teachers selected for the program, sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education and Washington University, St. Louis.

Paulson '65 The Ohio alumnus is also a member of a special sub-seminar appointed to study educational problems during the group's travels in Japan, Indonesia and Singapore. The Fulbright covers roundtrip air fare, a maintenance allowance and money for books.

Paulson also was selected for an East-West Fellowship for an Asian Studies Institute at the University of Hawaii and was appointed an alternate for a Fulbright seminar in India, but declined both in favor of the Southeast Asia grant. He received his MA in Southeast Asian history from the University of Wisconsin in 1967.

SPORT CITATION

Jimmy Crum, '52, sports director for WLW-C TV in Columbus, has received a special service award from Sport magazine for his "dedicated sports leadership and service to the Columbus community."

Crum was honored for his work in behalf of Recreation Unlimited, a TV-4 sports fund which he initiated in 1965. The fund is used to send mentally retarded and physically handicapped children to camp during the summer.

Crum '52 During his 16 years of sports reporting for TV-4, Crum has been the recipient of several other awards, including the Billboard Award for his documentary on a "big bear hunt" to Kodiak Island off the coast of Alaska and the John Hervey Award for excellence in reporting harness racing.

A popular emcee for community and sporting events outside TV-4, he is part of the play-by-play team for the Cincinnati Bengals Radio Network.

DINE LITHOGRAPHS

Internationally known pop-artist Jim Dine, '57, has presented Ohio University with 19 of his original lithographs. Thirteen of the color illustrations are in a bound edition of the Robert Kidd stage adaptation of Oscar Wilde's novel, The Picture of Dorian Gray.

The volume, bound in snakeskin, and the six additional lithographs and four loose etchings were on display in the Seigfried Hall gallery in April. The edition Dine gave Ohio is one of 15 artist's proofs of the limited edition of 100.

Ohio University sculptor David Hostetler, MFA '49, who worked with Dine during his undergraduate and graduate years at the University, describes Dine as the kind of person who knew "where to be at the right time. He was oriented toward Mecca early in the game." It was Dine's "charisma and enthusiasm," the sculptor says, that influenced Hostetler and other University artists to begin making contacts in New York and the Village.

Dine and his wife, Nancy Minto, '58, and their two children now live in London, where he works with Editions Alecto, a printing house which collaborates with artists in producing original works.

ASIAN INSTITUTE HEAD

Dr. Stephen H. Fuller, '41, has taken a leave of absence from the Harvard Business School, where he was associate dean for external affairs, to assume the presidency of the Asian Institute of Management in Manila, The Philippines.

A member of the Harvard business faculty since 1947, Professor Fuller became associate dean in 1964. Under his guidance the school

Fuller '41 has added six new buildings and 15 endowed chairs.

The new institute president, who assumes his responsibilities under the sponsorship of the Ford Foundation, has conducted extensive research in the field of labor relations and is the co-author of Problems in Labor Relations, published by McGraw-Hill in 1964. He has also been active in the field of executive development in the United States and abroad.

Dr. Fuller received master's and doctor's degrees from the Harvard Business School.

ALUMNI CLASS NOTES

1909

Mr. and Mrs. Rhys Evans (Mary Chappellear) celebrated the 60th anniversary of their graduation from Ohio University in June.

1910

Donald R. Blythe retired in December as Carroll County engineer. His 46 years of service include ten consecutive elective four-year terms and is thought to be the longest consecutive term of any elective official in Ohio.

1912

Clyde O. Gibson has been an ardent follower of the Ohio University Bobcats since 1908. Gibson was a 12 letter man at Ohio (four in football and baseball, and two in track and basketball). He is in the Ohio University Hall of Fame and an active member of the Green and White Club.

1913

Arthur D. Lynch is an attorney in Portsmouth.

Solving the Transportation Problem

Getting There Is Half the Fun!

Athens, you'll recall, is not an easy place to get to, even for the fleet of foot. The winged chariots, regretfully, are no longer in service and the railroad has seen fit to cut down to one train a day. However, it is possible . . . just as it was in your day . . . to get there . . . with the proper advance planning. The point of all this? Simply to remind you to make your plans now to attend Homecoming '69 the weekend of October 10 through 12. You'll want tickets for the Alumni Luncheon (cleverly sandwiched in between the Homecoming Parade and the Ohio-Xavier football game) in the new Convocation Center, and you'll want to return to the center after the game for the victory mixer. You may even want to top off the weekend by attending the Dionne Warwick concert Saturday night. The theme, with apologies to Webster's and 1964, is It All Ads Up, and parade floats and house decorations will deal with it. You know what they say in the trade: Queens, crepe paper and chicken wire do not a Homecoming make. Only you and your fellow alumni can put pizzazz into Homecoming. (Do you want to be held responsible for a pizzazz-less Homecoming? Think about it . . .)
